EXTRACURRICULAR FACILITIES

Extracurricular activities and organizations at Harvard are as enticing and diverse as the students who run them. Harvard students consider involvement in nonacademic pursuits a truly valuable part of their undergraduate experiences. For many, the combination of academic work and extracurricular activity paves the way to exciting careers or avocations. With more than 250 official organizations and countless informal opportunities for participation, students always have something interesting to do. Here are some of the facilities for arts and athletics:

STUDIOS AND ART CENTERS
Agassiz Theatre
Carpenter Center for the Visual Arts
Ceramics Program, Office for the Arts at Harvard
Harvard Film Archive
Loeb Drama Center
Quad Scenic Workshop
Special House facilities

The Phillips Brooks House Association (www.hcs.harvard.edu/~pbha/home.html) coordinates social service programs involving more than half of Harvard students. Students are elementary and high school tutors, Big Brothers and Sisters, homeless shelter and soup kitchen volunteers, and inner-city youth counselors.
There are more than 40 cultural and ethnic organizations at Harvard — demonstrating both the diversity within the Harvard community and the strong interest in cultural heritage among students and faculty.
