Virtue Its Own Reward? Evolution, Religion, and the Internalization of Cooperation

5 PM, Thursday, October 13, 2005
Sperry Room, Andover Hall
Harvard Divinity School
45 Francis Avenue

A lecture presented by Jeffrey Schloss, Professor of Biology at Westmont College and a leading authority on evolutionary and theological understandings of altruism, morality, purpose, and cooperation.

Upcoming events sponsored by the Evolution and Theology of Cooperation Project:

Thursday, December 8, 2005
5 pm, Sperry Room, Andover Hall
Why Isn’t Altruism Abnormal? Contemporary Cosmological and Teleological Arguments for the Existence of God and the Evolution of Altruism
Alexander Pruss, Assistant Professor of Philosophy, Georgetown University

Thursday, February 9, 2006
5 pm, Sperry Room, Andover Hall
Darwin and God: Then and Now
John Hedley Brooke, Andreas Idreos Professor of Science and Religion, University of Oxford

This presentation is the first in a series of lectures sponsored by the Evolution and Theology of Cooperation Project at Harvard University, directed by Professors Sarah Coakley and Martin Nowak and supported by a grant from the John Templeton Foundation. For more information contact: Heather Curtis, Harvard Divinity School (hcurtis@hds.harvard.edu).