Call for Papers

The Harvard Celtic Department cordially invites students, faculty, and colleagues to present a paper or work-in-progress at our

Twenty-fifth Annual Harvard Celtic Colloquium

October 7th - 9th, 2005

at Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts

Papers on any subject pertaining to Celtic languages, literature in the Celtic languages, and cultural, historical, or social science topics directly related to these are welcome.

If you are interested in giving a paper, please provide information as shown on the Reply Form enclosed, and a short abstract suitable for reproduction (50-100 words). Papers should be of a length suitable for a twenty-minute presentation—approximately 8 double-spaced pages of 12-point type. There will be a short discussion period after each paper.

We encourage E-mailed replies to hcc@fas.harvard.edu
See the enclosed Reply Form for mailing or fax information.

The John V. Kelleher Lecture ~ delivered by ~

Dr. Philip T. O'Leary
Department of English, Boston College

Thursday, October 6th, at 5:00 p.m.

Harvard Faculty Club, 20 Quincy Street in the Library, Second Floor

Admission limited to members of the Celtic Department, Friends of Harvard Celtic Studies, and attendees of the 25th Annual Harvard Celtic Colloquium

Additional information can be found on our website: http://www.fas.harvard.edu/~hcc

Please reply by